A NOTE FROM KAREN

Dear Friends,

There is something in every strong community that binds it together. It is not only geography. Community is a choice. I believe the Virginia Peninsula is bound together by people who choose to share of themselves for the greater good.

At Virginia Peninsula Foodbank, we see again and again how generous this community can be with its gifts of food, time, and financial resources. By sharing what we have with those who have less, we enable people in need to find hope and establish ownership in our community. When we give, we help the hungry and disenfranchised become empowered to build an even stronger community for all of us. We change lives.

While the Foodbank has expanded our programs to now providing the equivalent of 9.4 million meals, there is still much work to be done. Of the over 538,000 people living in the nine cities and counties served by the Foodbank, almost 74,000 are food insecure and, of those, 20,000 are children. While hunger affects people of all ages, it is particularly harmful for children, for whom the repercussions of poor nutrition and hunger are more severe. The consequences of child hunger are broad and long-lasting. Food insecure children are more likely to experience learning and academic difficulties, reduced concentration, and lower test scores. There is an increase in school absenteeism and tardiness, making them 1.4 times more likely to repeat a grade.

The recent news says the economy is recovering and the unemployment rate is lower. Those whom we serve often have jobs, but they are underemployed and do not make enough money to pay for transportation, rent, utilities, and food. Others are elderly and struggle each month to pay for medicine and nutrition with just one monthly check.

No one person we serve has the same story as another, but whatever the situation, there is no reason why anyone should go hungry – there is plenty of food to go around. I hope you will continue to stand with us as we move forward to uncover more and more resources to feed our hungry neighbors.

I am grateful on behalf of the thousands who have been helped this year by generous giving from our community. Thank you for sharing of yourself to build a stronger Peninsula community.

With appreciation,

Karen L. Joyner

A photograph of a woman and two children sitting at a table. The woman, with dark curly hair, is smiling and looking towards the camera. The children, a girl and a boy, are also smiling and looking towards the camera. The girl is wearing a white shirt with colorful stripes. The boy is wearing a blue shirt. There is a glass of orange juice on the table in front of the boy. The background is bright and out of focus, suggesting an indoor setting with large windows.

FOOD DONORS

Food insecurity is defined as the state of being without reliable access to a sufficient quantity of affordable, nutritious food. Owing to the generosity of our many food donors, we were able to distribute 11.3 million pounds of food last fiscal year, or 9.4 million meals, to the food insecure population. Listed below are the names of those who donated 200 pounds of food or more. We apologize we are unable to recognize all of our donors, due to limited publication space.

PARTNER AGENCIES

Distributing 11.3 million pounds of food wouldn't be possible without the dedication of nearly 200 community partners, also referred to as Foodbank Partner Agencies. Successful collaborations with schools, faith-based organizations, food pantries, shelters, and community centers has, and always will be, the key to accomplishing our mission.

VOLUNTEERS

Without you, we cannot do what we do best – properly nourish the community.

Because of you committing almost 32,000 volunteer hours, we were able to positively impact our community.

Whether volunteers are representing the Foodbank in the community, volunteering at distributions or food drives, in the warehouse packing emergency food bags, or sorting donated goods, each one of you has made a difference. Our volunteers represent all that is special about our community—civic organizations, corporate groups, military branches, schools and individuals—all working towards our shared vision of a hunger-free and properly nourished community.

Thank you for your continued support. Together, we can solve hunger.™

MISSION

The mission of the Virginia Peninsula Foodbank is to distribute food effectively through collaborative efforts that minimize hunger, promote nutrition and encourage self-reliance through education.

VISION

To inspire hope by leading the effort for a hunger-free and properly nourished community.

SERVICE AREA

The Foodbank distributes to the following cities and counties: Hampton, Newport News, Gloucester, Mathews, Williamsburg, Poquoson, Surry, James City, and York.
